Commissioner Brigham Says Farmers Should Refrain From Killing Their Good Stock.

HOME GROWN RATION IS URGED

Dairyman Who Provides for His Own Feed Will be Able to Tide Over Critical Situation

Commissioner of Agriculture E. S. Brigham, of St. Albans, has recently returned from Washington where he went to attend a meeting of the advisory committee on national agricultural problems recently appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Houston and Federal Food Administrator Hoover. committee was advised in detail regarding the food sit in this country and nation abroad and advice was asked regard ing many important problems with reference to their effect upon produc-When asked if he had any statement to make regarding the situation with reference to its bearing upon Vermont's food production campaign for this spring, Commissioner

Brigham said: Dairy Industry May Face Critical

Situation. "Vermont farmers obtain the major portion of their income from the dairy industry and they are naturally concerned about the prospects for the future of that industry. The prospects for the immediate future do not seem to be very bright. In response to the appeals made upon our entry into the war, the farmers of the United States increased their dairy herds and prepared for a greater increase in the future by saving a large number of heifer calves. We now have in the country 390,000 more milch cows and year ago. There are prospects of much larger milk supplies than norof a year ago and our stocks of condensed milk are very large. "The foreign market would be glad to get this surplus of dairy products. In England many households have no to be restricted to children and invalids. The same is true in France. possible. I know it will worry you to in Paris at $20 per quart. The trouble the other commodities. to transport our supplies of condensed milk, butter and cheese to our Allies who greatly need it. The result may be in the next few months, pending an improvement in shipping conditions, a period when prices for dairy products will be below the present high

"The question is, shall we keep our live stock? For years agricultural agencies have urged doing away with unprofitable cows which do not pay for their feed. This is a good time to cull such stock more closely than usual, but further liquidation seems to me to be unwise. The chances are that shipping conditions will improve within a year so that dairying will be very profitable because the world's supply of dairy products is very short. Then we have a prospect for a great demand for live stock after the war which will repay well the man who stays in the business. Representatives of three foreign governments have already visited the dairy division at Washington to locate dairy cattle to be shipped after the war. Two of these governments were Belgium and Servia, which, with supreme faith in their ultimate destiny, are looking forward to re-stocking their war devastated fields with dairy cows. Germany is reported to have less than 30 per cent of her live stock and the telephone and I couldn't hear a word numbers in other countries are greathe said.

ly decreased. We alone of the belligerent countries have increased. Doctor Taylor of the food administration recently said that the country which maintains its live stock will be five years ahead of the others after the Therefore, even if prospects war. during the next few months are not bright, the Vermont dairyman will do well to keep his good stock.

Plan for Home Grown Ration. "We need to change our methods somewhat, however, in anticipation of what may happen. We have adjusted our dairy methods to the purchase of large quantities of grains from outside sources. These grains have doubled in price while dairy products have not gone up in proportion. The placed at the disposal of the Govern prospects are that there will be little relief from these high prices during the war. Therefore, prudence would suggest in the present situation that we plan to make our farms more self sustaining. We may do this in three

"1-A good supply of well eared Always bears corn silage from corn which will mature in this climate.

"2.-Plenty of well cured, early cut clover hay "3.-Some home grown grains such as oats or barley.

"The dairyman who plans now to provide feed for his herd in this way will be able to maintain milk production at the least possible expense, thereby tiding over the critical period just before us and being able to meet the demands for our products when transportation is improved."

Nuts and Fruit.

The government is not calling upon us to give up all of our toothsome dishes, but to be economical in the use of those commodities which are scarce. Nuts and fruit have not been tabooed, and these will be found to add much to the dishes, and especially to give to our daily bread a new and very delightful flavor .- Pcople's Home Journal.

ALLIED FOOD SHIPMENTS REACH LARGE TOTAL

A general idea of the quantity of food sent to European allies by the United States from July 1, 1914, to January 1, 1918, is given by figures just announced by the U. S. Food Administration. In that period the United States has furnished complete yearly rations for 57,100,933 people. In addition there was enough extra protein to supply this portion of the diet for 22,194,570 additional men.

The total export of wheat and wheat flour to the three principal allies is equivalent to about 384,000,000 bushels. Pork exports for the 31/2 years amounted to almost 2,000,000,000 pounds. Exports of fresh beef totaled 443,484,400 pounds. The amount of food exported to Russia is negligible compared with that sent to the western allies.
